

19TH WORLD CUP COMPETITION IN THE FIELD REGION: A CASE STUDY OF KNOCKOUT COMPETITION

Cheng, Z. 1) & Bing, M 2)

1) Physical Education, Sports, Science and Technology Vocational College of Taizhou, China

2) Physical Education, Sports, Nanjing Institute of Railway Technology, China

Key words: 19th World Cup, the top 16 teams, the site area, analysis

Objective

Offence and defense is the main contradiction in the football game and throughout the entire game process. All offensive and defensive tactics of both sides are targeted to the conflict, and offensive and defensive strength of both teams has a direct impact on the results of the competition.

Methods

In this paper, we recorded the 16 knockout games of the 18th World Cup within 90min and related statistics (including injury time) in the form of a regional venue map by using video observation method. Statistics include: nine ways of ball getting.

Results

Table 1 Distribting of Offensive Times from Every Zones

region	Backcourt	%	midfielder	%	front-fielder	%	Total	%
left	402	20.7	443	30.5	286	43.5	1131	27.9
middle	1131	58.1	537	36.9	71	10.7	1739	42.9
right	413	21.2	474	32.6	301	45.7	1188	29.2
total	1946	100	1454	100	658	100	4058	100

1. The backcourt field of the defensive side is the end of the attacking of the offensive side. A considerable part of the attack can hit the side of the front court; Taking up the midfielder is of vital importance for offence and defense, more than 1 / 3 of the attacks took place in the region, which has more offensive and defensive transition and is the key areas of the attacks.

2. The focus of defense in this game is still in the midfielder and backcourt, except for tightening the defense of the ball area, the majority of the overall defensive zone is mainly used. Steals are the primary means of defense, accounting for 43.4% of the source of the ball.

Discussion

Distribution of attack points in this World Cup is broad and flexible. Players were quick to attack immediately after the ball. Attack and goal frequencies differs significantly in the regions including after the field, midfielder, and the former field, but the success rates are close. All teams emphasize defense, and hold the principle of attack after defense.

References

1. Tian Chao. From weak to strong changes in the mentality of [N]. Sports Weekly, 2006-07-04 (1).